FLED TO HONOLULU.
How Alva Hurt's Desertion Made His Wife Insane.
SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Mabel Hurt, a beautiful woman, deceived and deserted, is a raving maniac at the Southern California hospital, near Highland. A year ago she was a leader in Pomona society and met Alva Hurt, a well known young man of the town, a bookkeeper by profession and the son of a dentist. In October they were married in Riverside, but soon afterward he deserted his wife and fled to Honolulu. The shock was too much for the confiding girl and she became insane. She is now very ill with typhoid fever and, with confinement approaching, it is believed that she cannot get well. Her family were former residents of Bloomington, Ill., and were intimate acquaintances of ex-Vice President Stevenson and family.
The House will pass the army bill without changing a word.

WERE MIXED ABOUT THE MUSIC

The King's Anthem Confuses the Solons.

THOUGHT IT WAS "AMERICA"

One More Ridiculous Affair Marks the Record of Limekiln Club.

A REAR ADMIRAL of the British navy, the speaker of the House of Representatives and a dozen or two solons of the lower House of the Territorial Legislature caused more excitement yesterday in the old throne room of the capitol building than has been seen at any time since the Limekiln Legislature was organized.

Had a scene from the comic opera of "Pinafore" been translated to the halls of the Hawaiian Legislature the result could not have been different. From laughter to dignity and from dignity to laughter the members of the House alternated in their attempts to carry on legislation.

In the scene enacted yesterday Rear Admiral Andrew Kennedy Bickford, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet of His Majesty, held the role of the famous Pinafore Admiral; Representative Beckley of Molokai was the "Dick Deadeye," and Representative Dickey of Maui was the sweetest of "Sweet Little Buttercups." It all came about in this wise: The British Admiral, arrayed in the gorgeousness of the tight-fitting frock coats, glittering gold epaulettes, handsome cocked hat, brilliant red necktie and white trousers, followed by Colonel Collin-Keppell, Lieutenant Gerald B. C. Knox and Mr. R. Clutton-Baker, secretary to the Admiral, also attired in the full dress uniform of His Majesty's British navy, arrived at the capitol building accompanied by Adjutant General Soper of the N. G. H. At the instance of the Governor, Kappelmeyer Berger was stationed in the old coronation band stand in the grounds, and the moment His Excellency alighted from his carriage the band struck up "God Save the King."

As the strains of the old familiar tune drifted in upon the argumentative solons a look of inquiry mounted to their countenances. Representative Makekau was the first to recover his equanimity and he soberly arose to the occasion and his feet. He called Speaker Akina's attention to the fact that the band was playing "America," and as good American citizens the House should, as a body, rise to its feet in respect to the national air. The suggestion struck the speaker in the same light and he requested the members to cease their deliberations and show respect to the nation which would call for its own such an inspiring air as "America." The air ceased as soon as the naval commander and his officers entered the front portals. They mounted to the second floor and were received by Governor Dole.

Later the distinguished Admiral left the presence of the Executive and dropped in to view the august body of solons of the House. The speaker did not see them or their glittering uniforms. As the party appeared at the front doors the band played "God Save the King." The speaker soberly called the members to their feet, as if respect for the air was shown at one time in the day, the House should show the same respect at all times. The House indulged in considerable laughter over the suggestion. Representative Emmelhuth, scenting the mistake, sat down, but only for a moment, for the speaker told him to stand up.

Then Representative Beckley, like "Dick Deadeye," poured out the vials of his wrath. Hitching up his trousers in true nautical fashion, and throwing out his chest in a manner that betokened trouble, the Molokai member inquired why the House should be made to pay respect for the British national anthem. He said it was played in honor of the British officers and he did not propose to make a monkey of himself by jumping up and down when the band played "God Save the King." The speaker, unwittingly, failed to see the point, and then Emmelhuth took a hand in the business also. Beckley said that if this nonsense was going to be kept up every time the band played in the capitol grounds he would introduce a bill in the afternoon prohibiting the band from playing within a mile of the capitol building during the session of the Legislature. The manner in which he delivered himself of his threat was ample evidence that he intended to put it into execution. The House by this time began to think it had done a foolish thing and cried for the order of the day. This brought the Pinafore crisis to an end.

When the afternoon session was called there was barely a quorum and the speaker, upon hearing a motion to adjourn, declared the lower House adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning, as the members desired to attend the parade of the visiting Shriners. The House members present were good-natured and stood by the speaker.

Journal reading in the House of the previous day's happenings in that argumentative branch of the Legislature is becoming a decided bore to the solons, and many are taking advantage of the half hour utilized in its reading to listen to the harangues of the lobbyists, who are beginning to swarm in the corridors. The journal becomes more voluminous each day, and equally uninteresting. As a record of facts, stripped of the daily horse-play there is little in it to attract the average spectator's attention.

Yardley by Aylett.

REPRESENTATIVE AYLETT has added art to his other accomplishments, as his picture of the Advertiser's special artist will show. Mr. Yardley was engaged in sketching Aylett and the latter, noticing the fact, dashed off a sketch of Yardley. Both are presented above. Mr. Aylett has marked his cartoon "From life," to reassure a public which might otherwise think, especially from the fixed look and stiffened fingers of the subject, that the Advertiser's artist was dead—an impression not hitherto shared in this community.

Kaauwai introduced a bill of which he had given previous notice, entitled "An Act to amend section 123 of the Civil Laws of 1897, relating to the teaching of the Hawaiian language in the public schools," which passed its first reading.

A resolution was introduced by Puukii for the insertion of the following items in the appropriation bill:

"For repairs on the roads in the district of Hanalei, Kauai, $5,000; for a bridge across the Kallihwai stream, $8,000; for a bridge across Lumahai stream, $6,000; for a bridge across the Waihu stream, $4,000."

Maheo moved it be referred to the committee on public lands. Makainai moved to table, which carried.

Edilko presented a resolution asking for the military payroll kept by the Secretary of the Territory, as follows:

"That the Secretary of the Territory be and he is hereby requested to furnish this House a list of persons drawing moneys from the Treasury under appropriation, 'Support of the military payroll,' also, present monthly expenditures of any moneys under the appropriation."

Maheo wanted the report adopted, which prevailed.

Beckley presented the following sweeping resolution:

"That, whereas in the Governor's recommendation to the House of Representatives of the appropriation bill, the Governor has recommended to the Legislature to appropriate for the various departments and bureaus in the Territory of Hawaii of lump sums of money to be apportioned and paid at the discretion of the heads of said bureaus and departments.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Secretary of the Territory of Hawaii be requested to furnish this House the names of all persons employed by the Territory in the city of Honolulu, their nationality, whether citizens or not; their length of residence in the Territory of Hawaii; how long the said positions have been held by present incumbents; the character of said positions held by each person; the amount of salaries per month attached to all and each of the said positions of the following departments and bureaus, and clerical aid to the Secretary of the Territory: Superintendent of Public Works; Attorney General; Agriculture and Forestry; Auditor; Military, Registrar of Conveyances; Judiciary; Board of Health; Road Department; Sheriff and Police; and Superintendent of Public Instruction.

"And be it further resolved that a certified copy of this resolution be furnished Henry E. Cooper, Secretary of the Territory."

The resolution was adopted. Robertson presented a resolution of the following bills he intends to introduce:

"An Act to amend section 45 of chapter 57, of the Session Laws of 1892, relating to cases of absence, disqualification and vacancy in the offices of Circuit Judges;" also, "An Act to prevent the wanton destruction of the food fishes living in the water of the Territory of Hawaii."

A resolution was presented by Kaulimakeale, as follows: "To appropriate $12,500 for repair and maintenance of roads and bridges in the district of Hana, Island of Hawaii."

Dickey moved the report be tabled and taken up with the appropriation bill. Maheo said the bill should go to the committee on public lands. Motion to table carried.

A resolution was presented by William Mossman Jr., regarding the '95 revolution, as follows:

Be it resolved that the Secretary of the Territory forthwith submit to this House all matters pertaining to the political prisoners of 1895;

And further be it resolved, that the said Secretary be requested to forthwith answer the following questions:

First—The names of all those who were arrested during that time.

Second—The date of arrest, and also the date of acquittal.

Third—The duration of time that each prisoner was deprived of his liberty.

Fourth—All correspondence exchanged between the late Republic and the foreign powers in reference to the said political prisoners.

Fifth—If there are any claims made by any foreign powers in regard to their subjects; to state how much, and by what power said claims were made.

Sixth—All correspondence exchanged in regard to said claims.

Seventh—To separately state the different nationalities, their names and whether they were "killed" or "killed" or not—both foreigners and Hawaiians. And further be it resolved that the clerk of this House be instructed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the said Secretary of the Territory of Hawaii. Kumale moved the report be adopted. Carried.

Ewaliko presented the following resolution:

"One hundred thousand dollars to widen the front of Hilo, be inserted in the appropriation bill."

The resolution was tabled, to be taken up later with the appropriation bill.

Hoogs moved to return the Auditor's statement of one of the persons named in the amounts opposite each name of those who received salaries while on vacations. The chair did not view the report as unfinished business. Hoogs said it was an oversight of his in not asking for the amounts in his original resolution.

At this moment the Government Band, stationed in the capitol grounds, struck up the air "America," although in this instance it was "God Save the King," in honor of the admiral and officers of the English flagship Warspite, who were calling on Governor Dole. Makekau's ears opened wider, and he promptly moved that the entire House stand during the rendition of "America." The House arose and stayed their deliberations until the close of the piece.

The Hoogs motion was passed.

Beckley said that as Representative Dickey was one of the persons named in the list he should be made to answer as to the amount he received while absent. The chair came to Dickey's rescue by stating that "the honorable member was not required to answer to such a question."

The House enjoyed Dickey's embarrassment, while the latter looked wide over his spectacles.

Makainai presented a report of the standing committee on the control and sewerage system bill, recommending its passage.

Under the order of the day, House Bill 34, providing for the great seal of the Territory, and repealing chapter V, title II, Civil Laws of Hawaii, was read for the third time. Upon motion of Maheo the bill was passed, as follows: Ayes, 25; noes, 1.

The band again struck up "God Save the King," and the speaker said the House could stand up again. The House did stand up, although there were many protests that it was not "America," but Edward VII's anthem. When this was learned Emmelhuth sat down, and so did a few others, but the speaker called them to order, telling them to stand up with the speaker, to which they reluctantly complied.

Beckley sharply called for a point of order. That is not "America," he said, the national anthem of the British empire, and is played in honor of the visiting British admiral, who had "just looked in," said he angrily.

"Who gave this notice in the House that this was 'America' anyhow?" inquired Emmelhuth, gazing sharply in the direction of Makekau.

House Bill 16, relating to criminal jurisdiction of district magistrates, was read for the third time and passed upon motion of Maheo.

House Bill 17, relating to practice and procedure in criminal cases, was read for the third time, with two amendments. It will be typewritten and made the order of business on Monday.

House Bill 26, relating to the desertion of husband or wife, was called up for the second reading. The speaker said the report of the committee on the bill was to be considered.

The members began wrangling over the bill as on the day when the committee of the whole House adopted an adverse report on it. Makekau contended that when the committee report was adopted the bill was "killed."

Robertson stated that if the chair had taken his suggestion on the day the House battled with the report, the matter would not have come up again. He said that notwithstanding the fact the adverse report had practically rejected the bill, yet the bill could not be so rejected until it had been read for the second time in connection with the report.

Prendergast was now of the opinion that the House showed too much haste in adopting the report. Robertson said this on Wednesday. Prendergast thought it was a lesson to the House that they were in future to be content with the opinion that the bill had already been "killed."

The speaker went back entirely on his ruling of Wednesday, and after blowing hot and cold, as he was swayed by the arguments on the floor, finally declared the bill had been "killed" on Wednesday by the adoption of the adverse report of the committee.

House Bill 18, defining felonies and misdemeanors, was called for passage on its second reading. The report of the judiciary committee was adopted and the bill passed its second reading. The bill will be read for the third time on Monday.

House Bill 20, relating to cemeteries, was called for second reading.

Robertson said that there was no provision giving the Board of Health power to make regulations during an epidemic, and the whole country would be at its mercy. To see the consent of the Governor and Senate would be only practicable when the Legislature was in session. Furthermore, he could not understand why the House should

Kanuha Files His Dispensary Bill.

ATTEMPT TO LOWER EXPENSES

Public Lands, Stenographer, a New Liquor Bill, Public Monies and Routine Matters.

IN the Senate yesterday morning the Dispensary bill was introduced by Kanuha of Oahu. The measure differs from that drawn up by Senator Russell in that it proposes to reduce the price of Dispensary liquor, thus cutting down the anticipated revenues of the Territory. The author of the bill says that he does not care whether the Treasury gets a cent of profit out of the Dispensary or not. He simply wants the thirsty citizen to get his liquor cheap and pure.

The bill is shorter than the one now in force in South Carolina and eliminates the constable or spy system, leaving the enforcement of the law in the hands of the police. The Tillman Act is followed, however, Local option will exist in various districts, permitting people—women included—to elect between the Dispensary and nothing. No private dealers in liquor must get it of the Dispensary. The Territorial Government holding a monopoly. There will be no saloon kept by private parties on these islands if the bill passes. Every one who wants liquor must get it of the Dispensary in its original packages and go elsewhere to drink it. As the Hawaiian is a bottle-drinker, when he drinks at all, he is enthusiastic for the measure, regarding it as State Aid for Impoverished Toppers.

There are all sorts of rumors about the attitude of the liquor men towards the Legislature and the Legislature towards the liquor men in regard to the Dispensary bill. They point generally to an interesting climax later on.

A NOTHER attempt was made in the Senate yesterday to reduce the expenses of the present session of the Legislature, and to the surprise of every one present the original motion was made by Senator Kanuha, one of the Independents who only a few days ago voted to uphold the House in an appropriation of $45,000 instead of $35,000, as proposed by one of the Senators of the minority. It is evident that the matter had been thoroughly canvassed by the Home Rulers and that there was some discussion among them, for when the vote was cast it resulted in a tie of seven to seven. The decisive vote was cast by the chair, who caused the motion to be laid on the table, and thus for the time being the matter was disposed of.

The day's business was opened by Senator Kalaupokalani, who reported for the printing committee that Senate bills 6, 20, 28, 30 and 31 had been passed by the committee.

The public lands committee, through its chairman, Senator Paris, reported that action on the resolution introduced by Kaohi had resulted as follows:

"First—The road from Kawaiahae, South Kohala, to Kahualona, or boundary of North Kona, being the lower Government road over which the weekly mails are carried to Kona and Kau, is in bad condition and the road fund is not sufficient to repair it.
